Exercise Sheet 12

complete until Thursday, January 25th, 2007

Exercise 1 We will give you feedback on the language, content, and scope of your proposal (on the Wiki and/or personally).

Please revise your proposal accordingly and upload a new version to the Wiki. Do not overwrite the first version and put a new link.

Concerning your presentation

Your presentation will be of utmost importance and what you will eventually get your mark for. (We will make sure beforehand that your project has the right scope.) Plan to spend roughly half of your time and energy on the presentation.

Follow the guidelines discussed in the lecture and summarized on the Wiki when preparing your presentation. You will have 15 minutes for your presentation if you work on a project of your own, or 20 minutes for joint presentations (10 minutes each). This will help you and the audience to focus on the essentials and it will leave enough time for questions and discussions after the talk.

You must send us (or upload to the Wiki) a first complete version of your presentation on Monday or Tuesday of the week of your presentation. For those of you who give a presentation on January 26th and who have not written a proposal, this must happen on Monday.

We should then meet at least once to discuss your slides and the progress of your project.

Otherwise, if you have questions on your project or your presentation, you can contact us any time personally or by email, or, for questions of general interest, via the Wiki. Every project has a primary contact assigned to it, either Deb or Ingmar. This is the one you should go to if you have questions/problems that are specific to your project.
